Clear guidance on getting your research published

Open to post-graduate students, researchers & practitioners across all fields of the social sciences & humanities

DATE: Thursday 27th October

TIME: 14.00 – 16.00

VENUE: Children's Research Network, 9 Harcourt Street, Dublin 2

FACILITATORS: Dr John Devaney (Queen's University Belfast) and Professor Trevor Spratt (Trinity College Dublin)

COST: €20 per person (€15 for students)

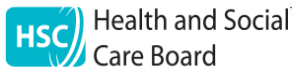

(A limited number of places have been sponsored by TUSLA, if you think you may qualify please contact Cait for more information)

Especially relevant for those who have undertaken or are supervising substantial pieces of research or practice that – with a bit of effort and appropriate guidance – may be suitable for publication in academic journals such as Child Care in Practice, the workshops are designed to support professionals from across all disciplines as they venture on the first steps towards publication.

If there is sufficient interest, a free follow-up session may be arranged at a later date.

To secure a place, contact Cait Morgan via e-mail at childcareinpractice@qub.ac.uk
